

And that's a wrap!

Team picture on last day.

Filming just wrapped up on the last episode of the Heritage Project! While there is still much work to be done to finalize the last four episodes, it is definitely an important milestone. If you would like to watch the first four episodes in English, you can do so on Amazon. Just look for them under the title Lost Legacy Reclaimed. One of them, The Scillitan Martyrs, has won two film awards since its release. These next few months the team will be focused on editing and finalizing the last four episodes, as well as continuing to work on the translations into the Berber language.

AND EVERYTHING WILL BE MADE NEW...

Our two construction teams this fall knocked it out of the park! One team gave a much needed facelift to the outside of the building, while the second team, from West Virginia, totally remodeled the editing suites and basement of IMM. In four days they built three new custom editing desks, repainted all the walls, converted one room to a hair/makeup room, built two feature walls, and made several custom inlaid wooden art pieces for the hallway. It was so exciting to see Kirk's designs and plans become a reality after months of research. Everyone loves the final result, and are so thankful that the "dungeon" is now such a pleasant place to be. That is so important when you consider that it is windowless, and the editors can spend many days on end in front of their computers editing footage.

The addition of a hair and makeup room has long been needed, and has already proven useful for the filming that takes place in the studio and on property. Kaleb and Katelyn loved being extras for the photo shoot.

*There is still work to be done.
We'd love to have your team come next year!*

POCO A POCO

Little by little we are finding our place here in Spain and on the IMM team. These last months Kirk has spent hours designing database systems for costumes, equipment and footage. It is incalculable the amount of time and effort these systems will save going forward, as costumes are being pulled or equipment gathered for an on location shoot, or particular shots are required for footage being edited.

Karla continues to communicate with Missionary Associates and MAPS workers who are walking through the itineration and visa process. It is a long and potentially discouraging time, so having a mentor is making a difference. One evening, in this packed fall season, we invited them over for dinner. While not all could come, we enjoyed getting to know some of them better.

On the language front, Kirk finished his intensive Spanish course in June, but hopes to start refresher classes one evening a week this spring. Karla began with once a week classes last spring, and has added another class each week since the kids started preschool this fall. While slow, we are both pleased with our progress.

KID'S KORNER

Pottery making at the Medieval Fair.

Thank you for praying! The kids not only got accepted into our desired preschool, but they have made a smooth transition. Both kids enjoy school and like their teachers. Kaleb is slightly behind his classmates, but is a quick learner. Birthday parties have been excellent opportunities for Spanish practice, as well as a chance to build relationships with the parents.

Both Kaleb and Katelyn greatly miss Caleb Weatherly, who returned stateside with his family for itineration. Every morning, as we pass his former preschool, they never fail to comment on it. We look forward to watching them grow together and build life long friendships with other MK's (Missionary Kids).

Trying the famous suckling pig!

PRAYER & PRAISE

- PRAISE - God continues to bless us through you. Although we haven't officially reached full budget, our account remains strong.
- PRAISE - We continue to make new acquaintances and friends, both Spanish and English speaking.
- PRAY - Kirk needs intercession for health and strength. He has had two injuries since we last wrote that have been very painful and have made life challenging. He has not let them stop him, but we now feel that they represent a specific, targeted attack on our family and ministry.
- PRAY - We covet continued prayers for language acquisition.
- PRAY - Join us in praying for God to really define our areas of ministry these next six months.
